ARTICLES LOST IN WRECK

Nearly $50,000 Worth Have Been Recovered.—A Few Alleged to be Missing.

The recent railroad accident at North Haven imposed a heavy task upon those charged with the responsibility for the recovery and return of the personal property lost as a result of the accident. How great was the task involved in this case may be gathered from the fact that the Special Agents and Claims Department of the New Haven road now estimates that up to the present there has been recovered and returned to the proper persons personal property amounting in value to between $40,000 and $50,000.

Such was the nature of the accident that an unusual amount of personal belongings was strewn about. Many of these when recovered lacked means of identification. A force of special agents of the New Haven road working in conjunction with the New Haven and Wallingford police took charge of the work of collecting these articles immediately. All personal property found loose was taken at once to a large room set aside for the purpose in the railroad station at New Haven. There each piece was numbered, a description taken and a complete list made up. Included in the thousands of articles brought together in this room were over 400 pieces of jewelry alone. The pieces ranged in value all the way up from $1 to $1000. There were over thirty watches and fifty rings, besides brooches, pins and one pearl necklace.

All articles which could be identified at once were restored as soon as possible to the owners or their authorized representatives. The remainder was held for personal inspection and identification. The jewelry was put in a safe and the other articles displayed about the room. A force of ten men in the Special Agent's department was busy for over two weeks on this matter.

Of the articles alleged to be missing since the accident no trace has yet been found. The railroad officials say that they are hopeful that these articles will be returned if found to the proper persons. There have been few cases as a matter of fact where property found under such circumstances was deliberately stolen. The most recent case of this kind being that of Hanford Donnelly, the chauffeur who was convicted last week in Bridgeport of stealing a handbag containing $3,000 worth of jewelry at the time of the Westport accident. He was sentenced to from one to five years in jail.
